

CHANIA

A CITY OF BYZANTINE, VENETIAN AND OTTOMAN INFLUENCES.

Through centuries of life and history, nestled in the Western Prefecture of Crete lies the second largest city, Chania. This land has changed its name three times, but never its welcoming identity. During the Minoan era, Chania was called Kydonia, meaning Quince. Under Ottoman rule, it was renamed Al Hanim, The Inn, and that name finally took its Greek form, Hania which today is our Chania.

When touring, there are four destinations that give Chania its charming essence, the Samaria Gorge, the view of the White Mountains, a stroll on the Elafonnisi beach and the Balos Lagoon. These visits simply cannot be missed.

With strong winds bellowing from the North and the West, the land here absorbs the most rainfall in the region, the soil in Chania is very fertile, with several types including; clay, clay loam, stony, and schist. From this; the grapes flourish allowing Chania to have many distinguished wineries. The most noteworthy are, Nostos Manousakis, Dourakis, Karavitakis, Anoskeli, Agia Triada, along with many other new up and coming wineries that have great prospects.

The tour's first stop is the historic winery of the Monastery of Tzagarolon, this beautiful monastery is set in the picturesque Akrotiri peninsula of Chania. The temple features admirable Byzantine architecture, a folklore museum and an ancient library of rarities. We'll be sampling select wines from the monastery's production while we admire and learn about the wine equipment of the past on display, small 'kerasma' meze offering is accompanying the tasting. From there we'll head to the family owned Dourakis Winery in Apokoronas to learn about viticulture and the wine making process as we taste their wine. Our next visit is to a well hidden old style kafeneio, and just across from it is our last 'sacred' stop to meet the key holder of a 'treasured' chapel and explore the chapel as well. Yamas!

Additional transportation charge for visitors staying in HERAKLION or LASITHI

PRICE:

€95 per person The tour's first stop is an organic herb farm just a few metres walking distance from the starting point of the famous Samaria Gorge. We start by learning about Cretan flora and the precious herbs of this land by Rodo, who is an agronomist that realised her life's dream by planting and preserving an herb farm. We harvest Cretan mountain tea and botanicals under her guidance to make our own blend, which we boil to make our own tea blend paired with homemade cake and biscuits.

A short walk away is the picture perfect entry point to Samaria Gorge, where we make a quick stop to take in the views and snap some photos.

After identifying aromas and tastes of herbs it is time to discover their influence in the wine. We head to Manousakis winery and we enjoy a private wine and food pairing meal. Farm to table food and amazing wines from indigenous and international grapes organically grown in the Manousakis vineyards.

We return you at your hotel filled with aromas and flavours of the Cretan terroir.

RETHYMNO

With its soft breeze, charming historic buildings and serene community, Rethymno creates a rhythm for life. It's population of 40,000 people make it Crete's romantic city, and the third largest on the island. It was founded during the Minoan period, the first of the Europeans, who were prominent enough to mint their coins, the crest of the city, the two dolphins forming a circle, was taken from the same coins. The average yearly temperature of Rethymno is around 17°C, and its long stretch of beaches contour where Psiloritis meets the Aegean. It is on these mountain ranges that the Highest peak in Crete stands tall at 2,456 metres. In antiquity, a significant historical event took place, nestled between the east and west peaks of Psiloritis is the Idaion Andron cave on the plateau of Nida, and it is said that there was the birth of the father of Gods, Zeus.

HERAKLION

A LAND WHERE WINE FEELS RIGHT AT HOME.

In northern Crete lies the monumental capital city, Heraklion. The largest city of the island, bustling since the third millennia BC, was a famous trading port in the Minoan Era. The grounds hold the rich history of the past, and the bright future for the present. Leading in wine production in Crete, Heraklion is home to 80% of Crete's wineries. Staying true to its history, archaeologists have discovered the oldest wine press in the world excavated in Vathypetro, a small village in the Peza appellation of Heraklion. It is estimated to have been used in 1500 BC when the Minoan civilization was flourishing.

Heraklion, in comparison to Rethymno and Chania, has a drier climate and the vineyards are located on high elevation sites, mainly starting from an altitude of 300, and above. Most of the vineyards and wineries are situated in the Northern part of the prefecture. Here, the refreshing Aegean sea breeze and cool nightly temperatures create more complex flavours and aromas.
